

SWISS
Pioneers
OF ECONOMICS
AND TECHNOLOGY

From Schmidheiny to Schmidheiny

Jacob Schmidheiny 1838–1905

Ernst Schmidheiny 1871–1935

Jacob Schmidheiny 1875–1955

Ernst Schmidheiny 1902–1985

Max Schmidheiny 1908–1991

From Schmidheiny to Schmidheiny

by Hans O. Staub, Zurich

© Copyright 1994 by the Association for Historical Research in Economics.
All rights reserved.

Published by the Association for Historical Research in Economics,
Weidächerstrasse 66, CH-8706 Meilen, Switzerland.

Printed by gsd glarus satz + druck AG, CH-8750 Glarus, Switzerland.

Table of Contents

Preface	7
Jacob Schmidheiny I (1838–1905)
«I want to be a manufacturer»	9
Manager at Sorntal – Lord of the «Schloss» at Heerbrugg – Silkworms and bricks – Expansion to St. Gallen – «As if the world were full of demons» – «The multiple-edge mill» – Opening of the Rhine Valley tramway – «The honest attempt to do good...» – «The honour of our house» – Chronology
Ernst Schmidheiny I (1871–1935)
Mediator, negotiator and industrialist	31
Lieutenant, «phantom fireman» and member of parliament – Electricity and energy – Ernst and Jacob II work together in the brick and tile industry – The «control of prices and production» – «Bonding agent made from fine-ground limestone and clay marl» – The cement cartel: a matter of survival – The birth of «Holderbank» – Head of the Barter Office – From the «beans deal» to the «Schmidheiny affair» – Rescue operations in all quarters – Eternit: «the building material of the future» – «Holderbank» goes abroad – Egypt: Ernst Schmidheiny's destiny – The bleak years – The air disaster at El Arish – Chronology
Jacob Schmidheiny II (1875–1955)
Brickmaking, optics and mechanical engineering	63
With 1 HP from St. Gallen to Heerbrugg – Managing director of Zürcher Ziegeleien – The brickmakers' main worries – «The finest clay pit in Switzerland» – Not bricks and tiles, but oil and fat – The brief adventure with the Safir motorcar – From the horse-drawn tram to the trolleybus – A new beginning with Wild-Heerbrugg – Escher Wyss: a company with an eventful history – From the heights to the depths – In the words of Zurich's city president Emil Klöti «a stroke of luck» – Modernization despite war and crisis – No time for «high politics» – The right man for the right job – Upright bearing in a Colonel's uniform – Chairman of the Dornier aircraft factory – A salute without the Colonel – Chronology
Ernst Schmidheiny II (1902–1985)
From cement to the top-flight position at Swissair	99
A master of negotiating tactics – An apprenticeship starting from the bottom – Early days at «Holderbank» – Splitting up the headquarters – Expansion to South Africa... – ...and to North America – Cement and Eternit in Latin America – The future of Swissair – Long-haul flights: yes or no? – The switch to jet aircraft – Times change in the cement industry – Chronology

Max Schmidheiny (1908–1991)

Traveller between worlds

123

Head of the business at twenty-three – Contacts with both warring parties – An «act of madness» in Berlin – Historic meeting in Cairo – Nasser's coup and nationalization – «I want Schmidheiny» – Commander of the Order of the Cedar – Interlude in wood – Wild-Heerbrugg: Max Schmidheiny's «favourite child» – Concern about energy supplies – «Favourable constellation for success» at Brown Boveri – Mergers, amalgamations, takeovers – The Hans Schaffner affair – Politics: not a dirty game – «Sitting around in Berne» – Settling his succession – The «most powerful businessman in Switzerland» – Chronology

Peter Schmidheiny (born 1908)

Building bridges in the engineering industry

155

Chairman of Zürcher Ziegeleien – From «hydraulics manager» at Escher Wyss... – ...to managing director in difficult times – New managerial responsibility at Escher Wyss – From loose «cooperation»... – ... to «hidden takeover» and merger – «Hard to take» – Head of the War, Industry and Labour Agency – Chronology

The fourth generation:

«There is no Schmidheiny superholding company»

173

Thomas: «Concrete and all that goes with it» – «Holderbank»: the world's largest cement producer – Anchored in the Pacific Rim – «Conscious customer proximity» – «Active leadership role» in environmental protection – Intermezzo at Wild-Leitz – «Switzerland has lost its claim to special status» – Stephan: the «industrial architect» – «Lugging asbestos sacks with the best of them» – The battle of the «wonder fibres» – Away from the building industry – Calling in a managing director – The vision of «sustainable development» – Switzerland: a negative balance – Alexander: a different mould of Schmidheiny – Californian wine and Swiss ski wax – Jacob III: more than just bricks – Safeguarding the long-term future – «Thorough rethinking» – Faith in the will of the Swiss to achieve reform – Chronologies

Annexes

203

Schmidheiny family tree
References and sources, photo credits

